

An Unsustainable Development

When her father Andrew Wolstenholme convinced her in a Crossrail tunnel that working with the environment would be a fantastic opportunity for her to spread her wings, Canary couldn't have imagined where it would lead. In this eco-friendly parable of our time Canary shares the inspiring story of how she refused to stagnate in a polluted domestic environment, but left in order to help us live greener, more sustainable lives.

Opening up for the first time about the 2020 eco-stove affair, which occurred during her time spearheading the "Cosy Wharf" residents stove community. Canary graphically discloses how her relations with a mysterious woodman made her realise that there are more important things in life than getting wood. An Unsustainable Development, the green-collar Architectural Fathers by Canary Wharf.

Architectural Fathers by Canary Wharf is a serialised memoir written by the daughter of various men involved in the evolution and construction of London's second financial district, Canary Wharf. Like shards of a broken mirror each chapter reflects a different father from a different vantage point of the development's history in this multi-layered portrait of some of the worlds most sought after office, retail and residential space.
